The first thing Randy Slater tells a person is that when they become his client, they become part of the Slater & King family. Given that he has represented three generations of clients' families, he obviously means it. "They are important to me because they feed our families," he says.

Practicing law in Atlanta since 1976, Slater earned a Bachelor of Arts from New York University in 1972 and a Master of Arts from Long Island University in 1973. Moving to Atlanta in 1973, he attended law school at J.D., John Marshall Law School and graduated with honors cum laude in 1976. He worked for the State of Georgia Workers Compensation Board and Fulton County Solicitor General's office while in law school.

Upon completion of law school, Slater established his own law firm, concentrating his practice in the areas of personal injury and criminal law. He points out that his personal injury cases—both automobile accidents and other types of injury cases—have produced results between $750,000 and $1.2 million. The later case involved a young woman who was a pedestrian on the sidewalk who suffered injuries as a result of a hit-and-run driver.

Slater takes great pride in his team approach and gives much credit to his senior paralegals, Debbie Whorley and April Manning, along with legal assistants Shanita Evans and Vanessa Bachman.

For more than 20 years, Slater served as an arbitrator for the State Bar of Georgia Fee Arbitration Panel, and was honored to become an Executive Committee Member in 2007. He also volunteered for 10 years with Fulton County Juvenile Court. Helping young children is a passion, as evidenced by his work with the Starlight Children's Foundation.

Randy Slater truly cares about his clients and appreciates the loyalty they have shown him since 1976. Married with two children, Slater proudly resides in Atlanta.
